

Collaborative Response Meetings (CRM)

Schools and teachers benefit in a variety of ways when teachers work together. A small but growing body of evidence suggests a positive relationship between teacher collaboration and student achievement. Lomond Community School's Collaborative Response Meetings provides time for teachers to work together and discuss each and every student to ensure they have every opportunity to meet their full potential.

The collaborative response meetings will occur four times throughout the school year in addition to the daily communication between staff members. The entire LCS staff will come together on selected Friday's to discuss on how best to help ALL students be successful. In addition, if need be, the Horizon School Division Team will attend meetings to help support the school's efforts in helping all kids become successful.
